

Bassoon Study at Butler University

- Students study privately with full-time faculty member, Dr. Douglas E. Spaniol. (See below.)
- Undergraduate students are eligible for substantial academic and music scholarships. Graduate students are eligible for full tuition waivers or assistantships (full tuition waiver, plus stipend)
- Weekly reed-making classes in our reed-making room equipped with the following tools, all made by Rieger in Germany: gouger, profiler, three shapers, tip profiler, dial indicator
- Weekly studio classes used for student performances, mock-auditions, bassoon ensemble, etc., and to discuss issues such as bassoon care and repair, professional opportunities, and audition preparation
- Many opportunities for professional work as bassoonist in and around Indianapolis. Butler students frequently perform with the Indianapolis and Pro Arte Chamber Orchestras, Fort Wayne and Evansville Philharmonic Orchestras, and the Symphony Orchestras of Anderson, Carmel, Danville (IL), Kokomo, and Lafayette, and other ensembles.
- Possibilities for teaching privately through the Butler Community Arts School and elsewhere in Indianapolis
- Frequent guest recitals and masterclasses. Past guests include William Waterhouse, Christopher Weait, Yoshi Ishikawa, Michael Rabinowitz, Susan Nigro, Michael Burns, Mark Ortwein, and many others.
- Annual "Butler University Bassoon Day" featuring special guest bassoonists and attended by professional and student bassoonists from around the country
- Ensemble opportunities for bassoonists include Butler Symphony Orchestra, Butler Wind Ensemble, Butler Symphonic Band, JCFA Composers' Orchestra (contemporary music ensemble), plus chamber music groups. Large ensembles perform in on campus in Clowes Memorial Hall, in various venues around Indianapolis, and tour frequently.
- Quality bassoon studio of appropriate size, assuring students ample ensemble experience and a healthy level of competition
- Bassoons available for student use include one Heckel (from the prized 7,000 series), a Fox 601, and several other Fox bassoons. There is one Fox contrabassoon available for student use.
- Access to the many cultural offerings of Indianapolis, including concerts by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Indianapolis Chamber Orchestra, Indianapolis Opera, and many other performances at Clowes Hall and around Indianapolis

Doug Spaniol is an associate professor of music, coordinator of woodwinds, and assistant chair of the School of Music at Butler University's Jordan College of Fine Arts, where he teaches bassoon and courses in reed-making, pedagogy, literature, and chamber music. In the summers, he serves as instructor of bassoon at the world-renowned Interlochen Arts Camp and the Music for All/Bands of America Summer Symposium. He was previously a member of the faculty at Valdosta State University and has twice served as visiting professor at The Ohio State University.

Dr. Spaniol's dedication and effectiveness as a teacher are reflected in the many accomplishments of his students. These include winning competitions leading to concerto performances with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Kokomo Symphony Orchestra, the Kokomo Park Band, the Butler Symphony Orchestra, and Interlochen's World Youth Symphony Orchestra. In addition, his students have been offered scholarships to this country's finest music schools, and have won prizes in competitions sponsored by Pi Kappa Lambda, the Indianapolis Matinee Musicale, the American Federation of Musicians, and in the Prelude Awards Competition sponsored by the Children's Museum of Indianapolis.

As a performer, Dr. Spaniol has appeared as concerto soloist with Sinfonia da Camera, the St. Petersburg Classical Symphony Orchestra, Solisti St. Petersburg, the Central Ohio Symphony Orchestra, the Philharmonic Orchestra of Indianapolis, and Butler's Symphonic Wind Ensemble and Jordan Sinfonia. He can be heard as soloist on two CDs: Bassoon with a View (Innova Records 520) and Frank Felice: Sidewalk Music (Capstone Records CPS-8707). As a member of Arb rio (with Alicia Cordoba Tait, oboe, and Bradley Haag, piano) he has performed throughout the Midwest, in St. Petersburg, Russia, and Buenos Aires, Argentina. As principal bassoonist of Sinfonia da Camera, Dr. Spaniol has toured England, been heard on NPR's Performance Today, and appears on CDs on Redcliffe and Zephyr records and the Classical Music for Dummies CD. He maintains an active performance schedule as recitalist, chamber musician, and in performances with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, Indianapolis Chamber Orchestra, and the Fort Wayne Philharmonic. He has presented masterclasses at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, Michigan State University, and for the Music for All/Bands of America National Concert Band Festival, among many others. He frequently appears as a performer/presenter at conferences of the International Double Reed Society, and he served for six years as the Bassoon Chair for the IDRS's Fernand Gillet – Hugo Fox Competition. A Yamaha artist/clinician, Dr. Spaniol plays a Yamaha YFG-811 bassoon.

In 1992 Dr. Spaniol was named a Marshall Scholar and subsequently studied at the Royal Northern College of Music in Manchester, England, where he was awarded the prestigious postgraduate diploma in performance. He also holds degrees from the University of Illinois and from The Ohio State University. His bassoon teachers include Christopher Weait, William Waterhouse, and E. Sanford Berry.
