Notes:

- AN101 and SW215 should be completed in the first year
- The two courses comprising the theory and methods sequence—AN352 and AN390—are only offered every other year in the fall semester. One must be taken in the fall of Year Two and the other in the fall of Year Three.
- All Liberal Arts and Sciences students are required to take two semesters of language at the 200-level or above. Language placement tests will be given prior to enrollment to determine the level of language enrollment. Depending on language experience and education, students may be required to take fewer language courses.
- Despite the shorter schedule, students would still be able to add a minor, study abroad for a full semester, pursue a combined major, or maybe even add a second major.

- There are no Anthropology courses regularly offered over the summer. It would be necessary to identify suitable summer study abroad and internship opportunities ahead of time to guarantee the success of the program. Three-credit independent studies connected to study abroad or internship experiences, or linked with other research or thesis work, could be conducted virtually with Butler Anthropology faculty.
