2021-22 Faculty/Staff Learning Communities - Call for Proposals!

Are you interested in sharing your experiences and challenges related to a topic that is important to you, with a cross-disciplinary group of others? If so, please consider proposing a theme for a 2021-22 Faculty Staff/Learning Community (FSLC). More information about FSLCs, along with the link to submit a topic proposal, can be found here: www.butler.edu/provost/learning-communities. Hurry! Proposal deadline is April 16.

Social Justice and Diversity Panel Series

The SJD Panel Series features faculty across colleges and departments to discuss how disciplinary/departmental configurations shape and deliver knowledge. How do these configurations and priorities affect our ability to teach SJD? Can we imagine a more SJD-focused configuration? How do we get there?

Friday, April 2, 12-1 p.m.
"Configuring GHS: Departmental and disciplinary pathways to a strong SJD curriculum."
Library Lunchtime Webinar Series

Butler University Libraries is offering a series of free, lunchtime Zoom webinars throughout the spring semester highlighting scholarly communications and health sciences topics available to faculty, staff, students, and alumni. Click here to learn more.

PALSave Course Redesign Grant Opportunity

Are you considering switching to a zero cost textbook in one of your 2021/22 courses? If so, PALNI invites you to participate in the PALSave Course Redesign Grant program! As the recipient of a five-year Lilly Endowment, Inc. grant to support our affordable learning initiative, PALSave will be offering $500 stipends to faculty as an incentive to adopt zero cost textbooks. Zero cost textbooks may include open educational resources (OER), library ebooks, or other materials available to students at no additional cost. Click here to learn more!

Other Resources for Faculty

Virtual consultations and support are available by the Center for Academic Technology. To honor social distancing, CAT invites instructors to schedule virtual consultations using Zoom. Doing so will allow CAT team members to talk with you, see you, and also see your computer screen. Email CAT to set up a virtual appointment. You may also send questions via email and request a telephone consultation. Additional information and resources can be found at www.butler.edu/cat.

Visit www.butler.edu/faculty-development for information on future programming opportunities and resources for faculty.
