

SPEAKERS LAB CODE OF ETHICS

The tutors of Speakers Lab have created and subscribe to these following set standards of ethical conduct. We pledge to uphold them in all situations and recognize that any tutor who violates these will be immediately reported to the managers and/or the Director.

HONESTY

- The tutor will not lie to students, faculty, or other tutors regarding any Lab-related matter.
- The tutor will give an accurate account of Lab-related matters.
- The tutor will give honest critique.

INTEGRITY

- The tutor will maintain objectivity during all Lab sessions – regardless of the tutor's personal or political opinions, religious beliefs, or past/present experiences with tutees.
- The tutor will not allow his/her personal circumstances to negatively influence the session and other Lab-related work.

RESPECT

- The tutor will treat the tutee with respect and devote his/her undivided attention to the student during the entire Lab session. The tutor ensures that all interruptions (including, but not limited to phone calls, visitations by other students/tutors/professors, and use of computer programs) will be disregarded for the duration of a Lab session.
- The tutor does not speak ill of others, as faculty and fellow staff members are deserving of mutual respect.
